

Lost Block

SAUVIGNON BLANC 2015

The Lost Block range was born when an impending storm forced the Tyrrell's vineyard crew to abandon a prized block of Hunter semillon to pick less storm resilient grapes. The 'lost' block was eventually picked days later and the Tyrrell's winemaking team were so impressed with the characters of the finished wine, it was decided to give the wine a label of its own.

Over the years the range has expanded to include wine from some of Australia's best known regions, each crafted in a 'drink now' style - soft and approachable with the same fresh, vibrant fruit characters that made Lost Block Semillon such a success.

WINEMAKER'S NOTES

The grapes were sourced from Orange, a cool climate region renowned for growing sauvignon blanc. After harvesting, the grapes were crushed and pressed before being transported our Hunter Valley winery, where it was fermented and matured. The wine was matured in stainless steel and bottled early to maintain its fresh, zesty flavours. Alc 13.5%

TASTING NOTES

Lost Block Sauvignon Blanc exhibits a wonderfully fragrant nose of snow peas, guava and passionfruit. The palate is well balanced between its vibrant citrus profile and a hint of grassy notes, with a soft, refreshing acid profile.

SERVING SUGGESTIONS

Ideal served with seafood, chicken and pork. The typically crisp, acidic edge of the sauvignon blanc and medium weight also lends itself to spicy Asian dishes and salads.
